A FEW MOMENTS WITH THE POETS

OLD STUN' WALL

If ye only knew the backaches in an old stun' wall!
O, Lordy me,
I'm seventy-three!
—Began amongst these boulders and I've lived here through it all.
Wasn't quite to hub's age there, when dad commenced to clear
The wust of ninety acres with a boss team and a steer.
And we've used the stun's for fencein' and we've built around the lot,
O, I've tugged and worked there, sonny, until gracious me, I've sat
And fairly groaned o' evenings with the twinges in my back;
Sakes, there wasn't no skirkin' them days! It was tug and life and sack,
For it needs lots of muscle, lots of gruntn', lots of sand
If a feller calculated for to clear a piece of land.
Bub, it isn't any wonder that our backs has got a bump,
That our arms are stretched and awkward like the handle on a pump,
That our palms are hard and calloused, that we wobble in our gait—
There's the reason right before you, round the medders in the State.
And I wonder sometimes, sonny, that we've any backs at all
When I figger on the backaches in an Old Stun' Wall.

If ye only knew the backaches in an old stun' wall!
We want of men
Who with a pen
Have piled away the curses that have crunched us in their fall.
I don't begrudge them honor nor the splendor of their name
For an average Yankee farmer hasn't any use for fame.
But the man who lifted curses and the man who lifted stones
Never'll hear a night of difference in the Heavenly Father's tones.
For I've the humble notion, bub, that when all kinds of men,
The chaps that piled with crow bar and the chaps that piled with pen,
Are waitin' to be measured for the things they've done below
The angel with the girth-chain's bound to give us all fair show.
And the humble man who's tussled with the racks of stubborn Maine
Won't find that all his labor has been thankless and in vain.
And while the wise and mighty get the glorious honors due
The man who took the brunt of toil will be remembered too.
The man who bent his aching back will care for crowd, my child,
By the acres he made fertile and the miles of rocks he piled.
That ain't my whole religion, for I don't propose to shrink
What my duties are in heaven,—but the gospel of hard work
Is a mighty solid rock that I've built on more or less.
I believe that God Almighty has it in his heart to bless
For the good they've left behind them, rough old chaps with humped-up backs
Who have gone ahead and smoothed things with the crow bar and the axe.
For if all our backs are numbered and he notes the uproarious fall,
He understands the backaches in an Old Stun' Wall.

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

Guyon Davis was home for the week end, returning to State Normal School, Farmington, late Sunday afternoon, Oct. 2.

A large crew of men, friends and neighbors of Ronello C. Davis, filed his casket the first of the week. Mr. Davis received a bad fall from the head scaffold to the barn floor several weeks ago, from which he has not fully recovered.

An old fashioned quilting party was held Sept. 28 at the residence of Harold Andrews. Invitations had been sent out to old time neighbors of Mrs. Eva Andrews Titus, in whose honor the quilting was held. All very gladly came and helped. The result was that two large quilts were completely finished after which A. M. Andrews, Mrs. Titus' father, invited the guests to his home where Mrs. Angie Robbins had prepared a most sumptuous repast of chicken sandwiches, jelly rolls, chocolate cream layer cake, cream cheese and coffee.

Hazen Emory of Bryant Pond is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Davis at the Davis homestead. Mr. Emory has been in the employ of the Collins summer residents of Bryant Pond who returned to their city home Saturday, Oct. 1st.

Mrs. Velma Davis spent the week end at Bryant Pond and assisted in the store for Mrs. Stephen Davis while Mr. and Mrs. Davis were away Sunday.

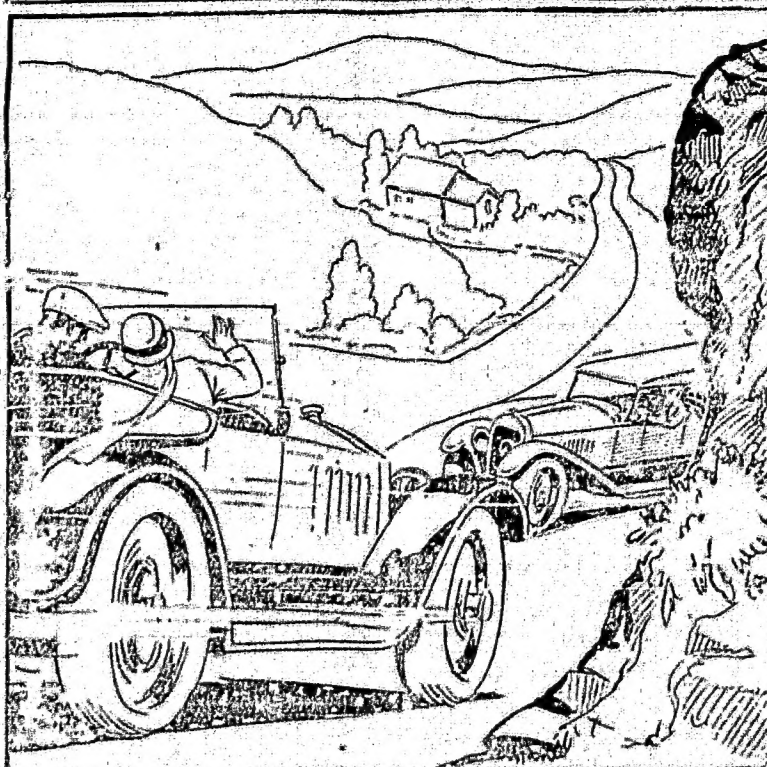

Lester Felt will enter Normal School at Farmington at the beginning of the second quarter, late this fall.

Quite a number attended "Tom Green's fair" at North Waterford. The fair was first class. Buckfield fair will call a lot from South Woodstock. If present plans are not interfered with.

The Molly Ocketts are planning to win out with an exhibition play at the Welchville fair Oct. 8.

The Hidden Danger

Motor Vehicle Administrators of the United States, the men who know, will describe a series of traffic violations and driving errors responsible for a majority of automobile accidents and advise how they may be avoided. This is number four of the series.

By E. AUSTIN BAUGHMAN
(Motor Vehicle Commissioner of Maryland)

DON'T SPEED INTO A BLIND INTERSECTION Slow down ahead before it is safe to drive 40 miles per hour.

In the picture the motorist traveling at 40 miles per hour could not see the hidden danger—the approaching car—at the intersection. By the time he did see it, he had only 50 feet to stop and he needed more than 100 if he had been driving 15 or 20 miles an hour—he could have stopped within the 50 feet.

Safe speed is determined by how far you can see ahead and how far ahead is the nearest intersection or entrance to the street or highway on which you are traveling.

You must not drive faster than will permit you to stop within this assured clear distance ahead.

If you do, when it is too quick which prevents some vehicles from entering the street and finding you unable to stop.

THE FINGER POINTS

In and Around Bethel

Gordon E. Lathrop

How Do They Get That Way?

The town is liberally plastered with "Booster Day" posters from a neighboring city. Trees, fences, and telephone poles are decorated indiscriminately. Now, if anyone needs "boasting" it's our own merchants. Even though they don't show life enough to "boast" themselves, there ought to be a town ordinance to prevent this sort of "foreign" advertising. If there is such an ordinance it should be enforced.

Where's That "School Spirit"?

Anyone attending the Gould football and baseball games is impressed by the absence of the spectators. The school spirit expressed in other places by cheer leaders and cheering sections is conspicuously absent. Is it because the school body is so immersed in the technicalities of the contest that their vocal cords are paralyzed? That is hard to believe. Cheering sections lend atmosphere to any contest. They keep the spectators on their toes. Cheering pops up the team by reminding them that they are not playing the game out there all alone. The whole school; the whole town is interested.

Douse the Glims

When you park on the side of the street why leave the headlights so bright they blind anyone coming toward them? Bethel's Main Street is a great place to do that stunt. You park on either side of the street, either way, and leave the lights glowing so that the approaching driver can't see a thing. It is truly "blind luck" if he gets by without hitting anything for anybody it is worse because the most conspicuous offenders are pointed down hill, throwing the lights up above the road and straight into the oncoming driver's face. You've met with this experience, if you've driven much here. It will be doing your part if you switch your lights to "dim" or "parking," or if you must park on the wrong side of the road, it is better to turn them off altogether than to blind another driver by their brightness.

Look Before You Fire

The hunting season opened with a bang last Saturday—lots of "bangers." There were quite a few in the woods after the elusive partridge. All the signs point to plenty of competition for the quest for birds. Therefore it behooves us to make sure it is a bird that rattles in the underbrush and not another hunter. It isn't a pleasant surprise to receive a dose of bird shot in the anatomy. And the donor of so much good lead is shooting into trouble. The birds seemed wild Saturday. If it hadn't been the first day of the season, some persons might have thought the partridge had been hunted before. The auto-able trails and the four prints pointed that way. But, of course, no one would spoil the season by shooting early. Just be careful, start looking before you shoot, and let out down the number of accidents through the bird, rabbit, and deer season.

I Say, Farmer,

Do you know you're making a badly mistaken judgment if you're going from door to door selling your wares? It is a dangerous undertaking, don't you know, to have to tell you that the cellar is full of rats. We do feel sorry for the wife and thirteen starving kiddies at home. We know that you've got to sell enough produce to pay them staples and clothes for the winter. And there are tears in our eyes as we watch the temptations in our neat window display. We don't tell you a man or woman after another that we are well supplied. Why do you not signify your business by more satisfactory methods of getting in touch with your market? Use your telephone to get orders before you leave the house. Lead out a few postal cards telling what you've got to sell. Even a classified ad will find a buyer that is in need of just what you've got to not all of. Any of these methods will save you time, leather, gasoline, and discourage them. They will save the village their dear old batteries and patience.

BIGGER AND BETTER BETHEL FAIR INDICATED

From the interest shown by exhibitors, fakers, and horsemen during the past week there is every reason to believe that the fair at Riverside Park on Friday and Saturday of next week will eclipse the presentations of recent years. Men are working on the grounds every day now. The cattle will be kept in the grove beyond the "grand stand" this year and the undergrowth has been cleared away there. People interested in displays, exhibits or anything connected with the fair should get in touch with Clarence W. Hall, secretary, who will refer them to the proper department.

TWO-MINUTE SERMON

by REV. GEORGE HENRY

LOYALTY

There are in the world today always, three great institutions: home, the state, and the church. First is the institution of love, the bond of justice and the third of ship. A righteous man will be loyal all three. He who is loyal to his home and family is all right as far as goes—he is one-third righteous. To his home and his country he is two-thirds. Faithful to all three is a fully developed, completely fitted man; a man after God's own heart. A man without a family has no existence, and under such conditions man would soon cease to be a family without religion and a nation that failed to recognize God would surely disappear. Loyalty to whom we love and to the nation protects its demands loyalty to God in whose hands are the issues of life.
